

THC shortlisted for the Archant London Environmental Awards 2009

Finalist

In association with
TATE & LYLE

Hot on the heels of winning the Marketing Award in the Archant London Thames Gateway Business Awards earlier this month, THC was among the finalists in the 'Best Environmental University/College' category in the Archant London Environmental Awards 2009. The event, held in the Radisson Edwardian Hotel at New Providence Wharf, was hosted by BBC presenter Penny Poyzer and featured a message from Boris Johnson, Mayor of London.

The awards highlighted the work of educational institutions, businesses and individuals throughout London who have excelled in their efforts to promote the importance of saving the environment. Although we did not scoop the top prize of an electric scooter in our highly competitive category, the judging panel was impressed by our commitment to being green through initiatives such as College Environment Week and cutting down on things such as water and paper.

It was an honour to be nominated for such a prestigious award and it was great opportunity to learn from what other institutions and individuals throughout London have been doing to go green this year. Keep up the good work!
